Westin A Sanderson's
Book

"Before thy mystic altar, heavenly truth,
I knelt in manhood, as I knelt in youth;
Thus let me kneel till this dull form decay,
And life's last shade be brightened by thy ray;
Then shall my soul, now lost in clouds below,
Soar without bound, without consuming glow."

"The purest treasure mortal times afford,
Is—spotless reputation;—that away,
Men are but gilded loam, or painted clay."

Reason's whole pleasure, all the joys of sense,
Lie in three words,—health, peace, and competence."

Kings may win crowns but cannot conquer death, 12345

Washington and Jefferson.

Our heros dead a doleful sound,
How large the stroke how deep the wound
The man who did his country save
Lies cold and silent in the grave.
He led our forces through the field,
He made the bold presumptuous yield.
He fought our foes on every side,
And boldly conquered British pride.
We trust he's gone to realms above,
To realms of glory, peace and love.

Not ancient Rome, nor ancient Greece
In time of war, in time of peace,
With all their boasted sons of fame:
Had not a more illustrious name.
Friendship and love shone in his face,
Virtue and truth he did embrace.
He kindly soothed and hushed our fears,
And gently wiped our falling tears.
We trust he's gone to realms above
To realms of glory peace and love.

Learn now in time of youth to follow grace and truth,
Can we forget the impending stroke,
When groaned beneath a tyrant's yoke:
Great Washington, 'twas he, 'twas he
That led us through the bloody sea;
Perhaps his rivet cost beyond
Above the surface of the ground,
His fame is spread from shore to shore
But now, alass, he is no more.
We trust he's is gone to realms above.
To realms of glory peace and love.

But we must all forbear to sigh,
Since Washington was born to die;
He ever was his country's friend,
But Washington must have and end;
And must it be, since he is dead
That all of our happiness is fled?
Behold the glorious change of state,
See Jefferson in chair of state.
We trust he's gone to realms above
To realms of glory peace and love.

See liberty with all its charms,
Nurs'd up and smiling in his arms
Behold his hand outstretched ~~arms~~ hand
Willing to guard our pleasant land.
His heart and hand and lips agree
To settle firm our liberty;
Kind and benign to all appears
And banishes foreboding fears.
Behold the glorious change of late,
See Jefferson in chair of state.

Great talents in this man we've found,
A piercing wit and judgment sound,
A genius, like the noon-day bright,
Dispelling darkness from the night;
We hope in Jefferson to find
A father gracious good and kind;
We trust he will protect our land,
And so we yield him heart and hand.
Behold the glorious change of late,
See Jefferson in chair of state.

Dear liberty is his delight,

He always keeps it fair in sight,
Dear liberty, that lovely flower,
That shone so bright in Eden's bower.
His soul abhors a golden tribe,
Abhors a proud despotic tribe,
Who like a sect of impious knaves,
Would wish us all to be their slaves.
Behold the glorious change of late,
See Jefferson in chair of state.

But heaven be thanked their bud is nip'd
Their towering eagle's wings are clip'd
They'll not our country overwhelm,
Since Jefferson has took the helm;
May heaven protect him while in life,
Preserve him from all woes and strife
Long may he live, in peace and love,
And happy be in realms above.
Behold the glorious change of late
See Jefferson in chair of state.

Great Washington, he now is dead.
Great Jefferson reigns in his stead

What reason then to mourn or sigh
Since Washington was born to die;
A man he was, and mortal too
As sad experience does show;
Then let us leave our hero dead—
Rejoice in him our living head.
We trust he has gone to realms above
To realms of glory peace and love.
